How We Do It

The J&A advantage comes from our diverse experience working with both public and private sector clients. This gives us the unique ability to translate know-how from one sector to another, resulting in effective and cost-efficient technical and management approaches that benefit our clients.

- J&A's customer-focused research and consulting services respond to the complex and evolving nature of working environments, whether in the United States or abroad. Our approach to problem-solving is grounded in an interdisciplinary perspective that leads to practical and culturally responsive solutions.
- Language and cross-cultural skills enable us to collect meaningful data and effectively accomplish clients' goals in a manner appropriate to the population being served.
- Our consulting approach rests on three tenets: personalized service, the use of methodologies appropriate to the client's needs, and empowering project staff. This approach leads to creating sustainable solutions that take into account existing talents and resources.
